PRINCESS PATRICIA'S CANADIAN LIGHT INFANTRY REGIMENTAL MUSEUM AND ARCHIVES ACHIEVES RECOGNIZED MUSEUM DESIGNATION

Calgary, AB – Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regimental Museum and Archives (PPCLI Museum) is proud to announce that it is the latest institution in Alberta to receive the Recognized Museum designation from the Alberta Museums Association (AMA).

This is an exciting time for the PPCLI Museum because earning this designation demonstrates that it is committed to maintaining standards of professional practice and to ensuring that it plays a strong and important role within the community.

The PPCLI Museum voluntarily participated in the Recognized Museum Program offered by the AMA, which involved providing evidence to a panel of museum professionals that demonstrated how the institution meets the AMA's Definition of a Museum.

Visitors to the PPCLI Museum can now look for the easily recognizable Recognized Museum logo, which identifies the institutions in the province that offer a quality museum experience.

Founded in 1953, the PPCLI Museum represents over 100 years of history of one of Canada's most distinguished regiments. As a core member of The Military Museums in Calgary, the PPCLI Museum relays the contribution of PPCLI to Canada's development as a leading nation.

About the Recognized Museum Program

The Recognized Museum Program (RMP) is an accreditation program managed by the Alberta Museums Association that identifies those museums and related sites in Alberta that meet professional standards for best practices.

About the Alberta Museums Association

Founded in 1971, the Alberta Museums Association is the non-profit provincial association for Alberta's museums and museum professionals and supporters. The AMA leads, facilitates, and supports museums in their vital role within communities across the province. Today, the AMA has more than 280 Institutional and 330 Individual Members.
